South-Carolina GAZETTE.

THE

From THURSDAY March 20th, to THURSDAY March 27th, 1755.

To WILLIAM LYTTELTON, Esq; youngest Brother to Sir George Lyttelton, Bart, on his being appointed Governor of SOUTH-CAROLINA.

GO, gentle Youth! to distant Climes repair,
And regal Pow'rs and princely Honours share.
Go, for the Service of thy Country meet,
With ev'ry Talent for the State replete;
On the first Accents of whose youthful Tongue
A British Senate has applauding hung,
Charm'd in so young a Senator to find
An Eloquence with Strength of Reason join'd.
Already Fame to bind thy Brows prepares
With Laurels far superior to thy Years,
While smiling Fortune spreads her glitt'ring Store,
And fondly courts thee to the Indian Shore.
Thy Country hence thy Merit will presume,
Thus highly honour'd in thy youthful Bloom;
And, justly, thence thy future Fame presage,
If Life be lengthen'd to experienc'd Age.
A Brother's Genius makes thee truly great,
Form'd by his Culture to adorn the State;
Bless'd Soil, bless'd Cultor, ever pleas'd to find
The Patriot Virtues rising in thy Mind;
Oh! may they flourish, and reward his Pains,
Transplanted fair to Carolina's Plains.
Be all thy Labours, all thy Cares pursu'd
Chiefly to one great End, thy Country's Good;
Be this in India, as in Britain, known
The ruling Passion of a Lyttelton;
So shall the Western World resound thy Fame,
And Carolina bless thy Patriot Name.

Bewdley, 15th Jan. 1755.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 16.

ON the 2d instant, about Ten o'clock at night, we had a violent shock of an earthquake, which lasted about a minute; tho', in other parts, it was thought longer. Its direction was from the two of the Seven Towers, with some of the walls, are greatly damaged, as are all the turrets, and many parts of the wall of the city. One great Khan totally destroyed, another rent and hurt; the walls of the prison of Galata fell in; several of the weaker houses, interspersed in the city, are demolished; and it is said many persons lost their lives. At twelve that night, and two in the morning, the shock was repeated, less violent; and, to the 14th, at three in the morning, there has been daily several very sensible ones, and we cannot say we are yet clear of them. It is reported that some villages in Asia have been destroyed; and that Nicomedia has greatly suffered. At or about the time of the earthquake, on the 14th in the morning, a fire happened near the sultan's palace at Besigdash, which he inhabits, and consumed a large seraglio belonging to Piryzade.

LONDON, January 2.

'Tis now said that the earl of Halifax will be sent embassador to the court of France, and that the earl of Egmont will succeed him as first lord of trade.

The duke de Mirepoix, the French ambassador, is expected here about the middle of this month: And letters from Paris intimate, that he will be accompanied by some young noblemen, in order to initiate them in affairs of state, and to learn the interest of their nation with respect to other courts, to qualify them for foreign ministers.

London, Jan. 4. The hon. William Pitt, Esq; pay master-general of his majesty's forces, has been pleased to appoint Abraham Mortier, Esq; and William Johnson, Esq; deputy pay-masters of the forces on the expedition to North-America.

Letters from Paris bring the following particulars relating to the death of the earl of Albemarle: That his lordship was seized in his coach as he was returning home, between eleven and twelve o'clock at night; that he was immediately blooded, and that all other precautions were taken that were judged necessary; that he continued extremely ill the whole night, and in the morning was taken speechless, in which condition he continued till six o'clock in the evening, and then expired. Mr. Ravigny de Cosne, secretary to the embassy, immediately sent to give notice of his lordship's death to Mr. Lestevenson de Berkenrode, embassador from the states-general at Paris, who was a relation and intimate friend of his lordship's; and his excellency, in conjunction with Mr. de Cosne, sealed up all his papers and effects.

We learn from Hesse Cassel, that the states of that country continue their deliberations with great unanimity. The business under consideration is, the concerting of the most efficacious measures for maintaining inviolable the religious laws, and constitution of the country. For this purpose, it will be expressly stipulated.

1. That prince Frederic, on his coming to the regency, shall make no alteration contrary to law, nor grant the Romanists a church for the public exercise of their religion.

2. That his confessor should be taken out of certain orders of priests to be pitched on by the states.

3. That the princes, his sons, shall, till they come of age, be under the immediate direction of the reigning landgrave, or of the states of the country; and that the prince, their father, shall have no concern in their education.

4. That the country of Hanau shall descend to the eldest of those princes, as soon as their father comes to the regency, on condition that the prince who possesses the county of Hanau professes the protestant religion.

5. To secure the execution of these regulations, they shall be guaranteed by the maritime powers, the kings of Denmark and Prussia, and the evangelical body of the empire.

There are particular accounts arriv'd of the late earthquake at Constantinople. For an hour the whole heavens were in a continued blaze, the flashes of lightning succeeded momentarily to one another, and the thunder all the time incessant. It was a sky of fire. During this time the great shock happen'd which threw down the buildings, and buried so many in the ruins. No commotion was felt under-ground; nor any noise heard thence, but all over head.

his majesty's messengers, set out with dispatches from the secretary of state's office; the former for Vienna, and the other to Paris. And Yesterday arrived Mr. Pollock, with dispatches from the British secretary at Paris.

The projected marriage of Don Lewis with a princess of Portugal will always meet with insurmountable obstacles. The Portugueze nation carry their opposition to it so far, that there is reason to suspect they would openly revolt against the king, if he should think of marrying his daughter to a prince without a crown. When the present king of Spain married the infanta of Portugal, who shares the throne with him, that the marriage might take place, Philip V. who was then on the frontier, was obliged to promise, that at his return to Madrid he would abdicate the crown, and place it on the head of the infant Ferdinand. This was the price at which the Portugueze nation consented to the marriage. It is well known, how the queen, to elude the promise of the king her husband, protracted for two years his return to Madrid, and what arts she employed afterwards to make the promise be regarded as of no effect. But all this can only contribute to augment the first obstacle to Don Lewis's views. As to the second obstacle, it is the consequence of the insurmountable aversion of the Portugueze to the Spanish nation. According to their tenets, De Castella nem verite nem caramelo. When the infanta of Portugal was married to the infant Don Ferdinand of Spain, the apprehensions of the Portugueze, lest this marriage should bring them under the Spanish yoke, were such that Portugal was on the point of a general revolt. The grounds of this apprehension, if Don Lewis should marry a Portugueze princess, being still the same, it is highly improbable that the marriage will ever take place.

We hear there will be a lottery this year, for the benefit of the Foundling Hospital.

Yesterday the right hon. earl Gower was at court, for the first time since the decease of his father, the late earl, and delivered up the privy-seal to his majesty. And

The same day his grace the duke of Marlborough kissed his majesty's hand, on being appointed privy-seal, in room of the late earl Gower.

London, Jan. 9. They write from Madrid, that the duke de Duras, the French ambassador, has concluded a new treaty with the Spanish ministry, which confirms all former engagements between the crowns of France and Spain, and stipulates in particular, that the subjects of the former shall enjoy all commercial advantages in the Spanish dominions that may be allowed by treaties concluded with other powers.

Private letters from Brussels by yesterday's mail advise, that an ordonnance of the Empress-Queen was published in that city yesterday se'nnight, for taking an exact list of all her subjects in Flanders, of both sexes, and of all ages, expressing their quality, condition, office, trade, business, and the servants which they keep.

They tell us from Francfort, that prince Frederic of Hesse-Cassel has signed a declaration, importing, that the step he has taken concerns nobody but himself; and that as it is grounded only upon his inward belief and sentiments in religious matters, it has nothing at all to do with the privileges of the country, which neither can nor ought to be affected by his change of religion.

We learn from Cassel that the states of that country have voted 10,000 crowns, to defray the charges of the three young princes journey to Gottingen.

On Tuesday his grace the duke of Rutland kissed his majesty's hand, on being appointed lord Steward of the household in the room of the duke of Marlborough, and the white wand was delivered to him.

Yesterday his excellency the duke de Mirepoix, the French ambassador, arrived at his house in Grosvenor-Square, from France.

It is observed in letters from Dresden, that Te Deum has been sung in all the churches of that city, for the safe return of their Polish majesties from Warsaw: and with very good reason too, since the next vacancy of the Polish throne is like to prove as troublesome and expensive to the Saxons as the two last elections.

The right hon. house of peers met this day, according to adjournment.

Two men of war, of 20 guns each, are fitting out for the coast of Africa, for the better protection of our trade there.

[illegible] vertised his estate and mansion house to be sold. When Marilius saw the advertisement, he sent for Sempronius, and desired him to open his heart, and rely on the friendship of Marilius. He did so; and his story greatly affected Marilius, who immediately fetched the writings of Sempronius's estate, and delivered them to him, together with a general release.

London, Jan. 11. Private letters from Naples advise, that orders have been given to the troops of that kingdom (which are in such a condition as has not been known for a long time) to hold themselves in readiness to march upon the first order.

We hear his majesty has been pleased to appoint the right hon. Charles Marquis of Winchester to be lieutenant of the tower of London, in the room of his father, now duke of Bolton.

We hear that a bill will be offered to the house, for taking off the drawback allowed on foreign linnens exported to America, in order to increase the consumption of Scotch and Irish linnens.

A vessel from North or South Carolina, name unknown, is lost near Kinsale in Ireland; a great number of barrels of tar have been seen floating at sea, and several taken up by the country people, as also a large chest, but the contents were not known when the letters came away.

Extract of a Letter from Ratisbon, Dec. 26.

"Notwithstanding all the artifices of the Romish party in the Empire to weaken the Protestant interest, by gaining over the princes of the latter communion with views of temporal profit, the evangelick body have the pleasure to find that confirmed by experience, which they have always expected from solid principles and sound policy, i.e. that the house of Brandenburgh will and ever must be the principal protector of the Protestant cause in Germany: For while there is any such distinction as Protestant and Papist, and the house of Austria with the majority of the electoral college are the support of the latter, the former cannot fall, from political motives, of being supported by the kings of Prussia: And accordingly we see how ready his Prussian majesty is to guaranty the measures taken by the landgrave and the states of Hesse Cassel to prevent the growth of Popery in that country.

"Since the reformation the Protestants of Germany have lost several of their principal possessions: Saxony turned to Rome for the sake of the Polish crown, as is supposed; the Palatine court is also become Popish; another another electorate was likewise in danger of the same sort of event about fifty years ago, but providence designed better things for it; and now the conversion of the hereditary prince of Hesse Cassel has given a fresh alarm to the evangelick body. But the growing power of the house of Bradenburg dispels the fears of Protestants, as it will always be the interest of that house (were it the only Protestant potentate left in the Empire) to protect and maintain the reformation; for where e Popery has the upper hand, there will always be some kind of persecution exercised upon th se that dissent from it; the persecuted will consequently remove by scores out of such parts of Germany; and thus the Prussian monarch's dominions will become populous and wealthy by affording them shelter and protection."

London, Jan. 14. Some letters from Paris mention that the friends of Cardinal Tencin and M. Maurepas are not without hopes of seeing them recalled to the ministry.

The last letters from Petersburgh advise, that the empress of Russia has resolved to restore the duke of Brunswick, and his son prince John, to their liberty, the fecundity of the grand princess of Russia having secured the crown to the house of Holstein.

We hear that Charles Steevens, Esq; is appointed, by the right hon. the lords commissioners of the admiralty, commander in chief of his majesty's ships at Barbados and the Leeward Islands.

St. James's, Jan. 9. This day his grace Harry duke of Bolton and the right hon. John earl of Egmont were, by his majesty's command, sworn of his majesty's most hon. privy council, and took their respective places at the board accordingly.

Whitehall, Jan. 14. The king has been pleased to appoint his grace John duke of Rutland to be lord steward of his majesty's household, in the room of his grace the duke of Marlborough.

London, Jan. 16. Letters from Petersburgh import, that 'it being resolved to make a considerable augmentation both in the land and sea forces of the Russian empire, the hundredth man of her Imperial majesty's subjects is to be inlisted, which will form a body of 146,145 men.'

Two men of war are fitting out, and will sail early in the spring with forces for Nova Scotia.

The Elizabeth, Hume, from Carolina for London, met with exceeding bad weather the whole passage, and on the 12th past, being then near soundings, met with a violent storm, in which she broach'd to, and on the 29th with great damage put into Cork, having lost her anchors, boats, sails, rigging, &c. and several of her crew are much hurt and disabled.

We are informed that the right hon. the earl of Rochfort will be appointed ambassador to the court of France, in the room of the late earl of Albemarle.

According to our advices from Madrid by this day's Holland mails, the treaty lately concluded between the French and Spanish courts is not confined to the interests of those two powers, but includes those of some other courts, amongst which are mentioned those of Naples and Turin.

Jan. 18. On Thursday the hon. Frederick Hervey, Brother to the earl of Bristol, went on board the Betty Snow, Capt. Castletown, in order to serve as a Volunteer in the Expedition to America.

The Regiment of foot, commanded by Gen. Woolf, six companies of which are now doing duty in Dover Castle, are shortly to march for Exeter, and soon after to embark for Port-Mahon, to relieve one of the Regiments there.

On wednesday last the duke de Mirepoix, ambassador of France, waited on the countess Dowager of Albemarle, with compliments of condolance from his most christian majesty, on occasion of the late earl of Albemarle's death.

According to private advices from Warsaw, they expect some unlucky turn in the affairs of Poland, or at least some broils among neighbouring states which may affect the kingdom; which apprehensions are grounded chiefly on this circumstance, viz. that his Polish majesty, before he set out on his return to Saxony, signed universals for convoking an extraordinary dyet, the time and place of whose meeting he will determine as he shall see occasion.

It is said in the Hague Gazette, that the treaty depending between the courts of Great Britain and Spain is on the Point of being concluded; and by one of the principal articles of this treaty the English are to be reinstated in all the possessions they formerly had in the Gulph of Honduras; and that their commerce in the Gulph, as also in the Bay of Campeachy, will be regulated so as to prevent any disputes hereafter between the two nations.

Orders are received at Portsmouth Yard, for his majesty's Ship the Terrible to be immediately docked and sheathed, for foreign service. The monarch and captain are also ordered into the dock; and it is expected many Ships will soon be put into commission.

We are informed that a certain well-known author was presented to his majesty a few days ago by a very great personage.

It is reported that the celebrated Fanny Murray was married a few days since to a foreigner of distinction.

London, Jan. 21. We hear that Capt. Howe is appointed commander of the Dunkirk man of war, lately launched.

Extract of a Letter from Cork, Jan. 9.

'Yesterday Col. Dunbar's Regiment embarked on board the Transports at Cove; and this Day Sir Peter Halket's Regiment marched from Kinsale across the country, and also embarked; so that all the Transports (fifteen in number) are now ready to sail for Virginia, with the first fair Wind, under Convoy of two men of war of twenty Guns each. The Troops shewed great chearfulness and alacrity for the expedition, by repeated acclamations and huzza's. Some gentlemen commiserating the wretched condition of the soldiers wives and children, made a considerable collection for them to bear their expences to the places they came from.'

Last Week Mr. Jeffrys, Geographer to his royal highness the prince of Wales, presented to the king, the princess Dowager of Wales, and the prince of Wales, his accurate map of Virginia, drawn by Messr. Fry and Jefferson, comprehending the back settlements and forts on the Ohio River, the roads and distances from Williamsburg and Alexandria, through Winchester, to Wills's Creek, to the fort on the Ohio, and the roads from Philadelphia through Virginia into North-Carolina.

Yesterday se'nnight his excellency Humphry Bland, Esq; commander in chief of his majesty's forces in Scotland, was married to Miss Betty Dalrymple, daughter of the late Baron Dalrymple, and Niece to the late earl of Stair, a young Lady of distinguished merit and beauty.

Letters from Italy by this Day's Holland mail inform us, that there is a project on foot for a double Marriage, between the archduke Joseph and the eldest daughter of the king of the Two Sicilies, and between the duke of Calabria (eldest son of his Sicilian majesty) and the eldest of the archduchesses; an alliance which (say these Letters) must fix the peace of Italy on a solid basis.

London, Jan 23. Orders have been sent to Chatham forthwith to sheath the Prince, a new second Rate of 90 Guns; and also to sheath the Somerset and Yarmouth, two third Rates. The Prince Frederick, a third rate, is ordered to be fitted for the Sea.

And the Culloden, a 74 Gun Ship, Harry Ward, Esq; commander, is ordered to be victualled, and to proceed forthwith to the Nore.

We hear that orders are issued from the War Office, for embarking at Cork the Regiments commanded by the hon. lord George Bentink and the hon. Col. Waldegrave, which are to be landed at Bristol, and will be immediately augmented to seventy Men a company, the same number as the regiments on the English establishment.

The Harwich man of war, of sixty Guns, will be launch'd at Deptford the next spring tide.

Two forty Gun ships, and a sloop, will likewise soon be launched there.

The marquis de Durfort, appointed by the court of France to attend the duke de Mirepoix, has been presented to the king at St. James's, count d'Eltain, colonel of a regiment of Foot, who by order of the court attends the same ambassador, was likewise presented last Friday, being recovered of a fit of illness, which hindered his being presented sooner. The court of France has, contrary to custom, sent these two lords, to honour the duke de mirepoix's embassy.

Letters from Paris take notice, that all persons, who pretend to any skill in politicks, appear not a little alarm'd at the news of the Grand Signior's death; that the French ministry had been daily expecting that event this twelve month past, from the opinion of able physicians at constantinople; and that their measures, with respect to America, have been taken in consequence of the turn which they expect that event will produce in the general affairs of Europe.

They observe in letters from Naples, that the conjecture vented in some foreign papers, about the queen dowager of Spain's labouring to secure the throne of the Spanish monarchy for the infant Don Lewis, are meer dreams; that his Sicilian majesty is sure of succeeding to that throne, if he survives his present Catholic majesty, and will likewise make a good provision in Italy for his second son; and that even supposing the talked-of project for a double marriage between their Imperial and Sicilian majesties children should take place, that several branches of the house of Bourbon would take care that the Imperial court should be no gainer by it in the end.

His majesty's ship the Litchfield, lately put into commission at Chatham, and the command of her given to Capt. Charles Stevens, is ordered to be manned at that place with all expedition.
